

Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man sow, that shall he also reap. - Galatians 6:7

God's vengeance has come across the land. Many are those who have been laid low, either to join him in Heaven or to suffer eternal damnation. Those who remain are witnesses of his wrath. Those who remain have been given a final chance to atone and turn themselves to Him.

You have preached the gospel throughout your life. First from the pulpit and then, when God called you to the task, as a state senator in Mississippi, followed by your first term in the House of Representatives. You have sought always to bring men to the light, to help them to understand God's plan and to fear his righteousness. Many in Washington saw you as an anachronism, even while the faithful back in Mississippi supported your cause. Now, with God's vengeance having come across the land, just as you said it would, those who remain must repent or know fully the eternal torment that awaits them.

You believe that God has spared you so that you can be the shepherd for those who remain. They are a wayward flock who must be cared for and brought home to God's forgiveness.

Chief Obanhein is a god-fearing police chief who has righteously defended D.C. against unspeakable depravities for decades. You believe that God has a special purpose for Obanhein, if the police chief is ready to accept that calling.

Commander Garrity is a sinner, but is working toward the light. This could be your true opportunity to save this lost soul.

Dr. Cruz may be a man of science, but there is also great love in Cruz's heart and an understanding of service to others. Cruz would be a valuable ally if the doctor can be saved.

Secretary Stevenson is one of those Christians who speaks Christian words but does not do Christian acts. Jesus alone can save Stevenson from the bad decisions of the past.

Senator Shields is one of the few good Christians in the Senate. You greatly respect the few that can keep their heads above the politics.
